

Auction Kings Cast Where Are They Now?

"Auction Kings" was a cult reality television series on Discovery Channel from 2010 to 2013. The show was centered around Gallery 63, the auction house in Atlanta, Georgia, and its diverse cast of characters who appraised, evaluated, and auctioned off a vast array of items. The show offered an exciting look at the fascinating world of unusual antiques, collectibles, and bizarre objects and quickly built a devoted fan base. However, as with other TV programs, "Auction Kings" ended, and the fans wonder what transpired to some of its cast. This article will look at what happened to the post-Auction Kings" lives of some of the characters with the most excellent recollections.

- Paul Brown - The Auctioneer Paul Brown was the charismatic auctioneer who brought excitement and energy to each auction held at Gallery 63. After the show was over, Paul continued working in the auction industry. He has conducted auctions for charities and is active in antiques and collectibles. His charismatic persona and auctioneering abilities are what make him a sought-after celebrity at a variety of events.
- Jon Hammond - The Restorer Jon Hammond was this show's meticulous and skilled restaurateur. He is well-known for his expertise in bringing older, beaten-up objects back to their original splendor. Post-Auction King," Jon started his restoration company, which concentrates on repairing and refinishing antique and vintage things. He has received recognition for his work and is continuing to work towards preserving the historical.

- Cindy Shook - The Office Manager Cindy Shook was the organized and efficient office manager of Gallery 63. After the event, she was active in the auction business and was a certified appraiser specializing in vintage and antique jewelry. Her experience has earned her the respect of many in the appraisal world, and she regularly imparts her expertise in workshops and other events.
- Delfino Ramos - The Picker Delfino Ramos was the picker who searched across the country for unique items to showcase in auctions. Post-"Auction" Kings," Delfino continues to be a selector, traveling worldwide to discover treasures hidden in the midst. He is occasionally featured on other shows that focus on antiques and collectibles. He discusses the experiences of a professional picker with other collectors.
- Bob Brown - The Owner Bob Brown was the owner of Gallery 63 and was a significant character in the show. After the series was over, Bob continued to manage the auction house. The business grew and adapted to the changing market dynamics by introducing auctions online. Gallery 63 is still a well-known brand in the auction world, with a range of auctions, both traditional and online.
- Cindy Sorley - The Appraiser Cindy Sorley, the knowledgeable appraiser, was well-known for her ability to determine the worth of objects. Post-'-Auction The Kings" Cindy has continued to be an appraiser and frequently collaborates with museums and other institutions in appraisers and authenticating precious pieces.
- Emily Friedman - The Gallery Manager Emily Friedman was the gallery manager who kept the show's activities running efficiently. After the show was over, she left for other ventures. Emily gained a reputation as an interior designer who often incorporates antique and vintage pieces in her designs. Her sense of style and attention to detail remain her hallmarks.

The group in "Auction Kings" has gone on to live various successful and varied lives in collectibles, antiques, and other related areas. The show's experiences allowed them to show their talents, significantly impacting their specialties. Although "Auction Kings" might be a fond memory to its viewers, The cast has shown that their passion for the past, as well as craftsmanship and distinctive objects, is not fading away and continues to flourish in the realm of auctions and antiques.

One site unique in online auctions, one of the most prominent, is Auction Daily. It's a comprehensive guide for anyone interested in the auction industry and provides a wealth of details, including auction previews, auction calendars, auction news, and connections to significant antiques, art, and painting dealers.